ABSTRACT

This bibliographic guide lists reference sources available at McGill University for research in prehistory and non-classical archaeology. No exclusively biographical sources have been included, but many of the encyclopedias and handbooks contain biographical information and are annotated accordingly. Titles are listed in the following categories: (1) bibliographic guides (2 items); (2) directories (museums and societies, 5 items); (3) encyclopedias and topical dictionaries (12 items); (4) language dictionaries (3 items); (5) atlases (7 items); (6) guides, manuals, and surveys (14 items); and (7) bibliographies (34 items). Titles of works are given in the language of publication, but the annotations are in English. Entries contain listings from the following countries and regions: Africa, America, Central Asia, China, Egypt, Europe, Great Britain, Ireland, the Orient, Russia, and South and Southwest Asia. (DB)

ARCHAEOLOGY

A GUIDE TO REFERENCE SOURCES

This bibliographic guide lists reference sources available at McGill for research in prehistory and non-classical archaeology. Despite the inclusion of some sources of relevance for all archaeology, a more complete range of sources for classical archaeology is included in the Classical Studies guide to reference sources. Other guides to reference sources prepared in the Reference Department which may be useful include those covering Anthropology, Polar Regions and Native Peoples. Copies are available for consultation at the Reference Desk.

Sources of limited geographical or topical coverage can be found by searching on MUSE using appropriate subject headings. Some examples of relevant headings, which can be adapted for any country or region, are:

AFRICA--ANTIQUITIES
MAN, PREHISTORIC--AFRICA
EXCAVATIONS (ARCHAEOLOGY)--MEXICO
CIVILIZATIONS, ANCIENT--CHINA
PALEOLITHIC [MESOLITHIC][NEOLITHIC] PERIOD--EUROPE.

Practical guides to archaeology stressing field methods and techniques have not been included since these may be found easily by checking MUSE under the headings ARCHAEOLOGY--METHODOLOGY or ARCHAEOLOGY--FIELD WORK--HANDBOOKS, MANUALS.

For further guidance on subject access to the library collection, consult a copy of the Library of Congress List of Subject Headings, which is available for consultation in the Reference Department.

No exclusively biographical sources have been included in this bibliography, but many of the encyclopedias and handbooks contain biographical information and are annotated accordingly. Similarly, bibliographical references are not only to be found in the works listed in the section BIBLIOGRAPHIES. Many excellent bibliographies will be found in sources in almost every section. All locations for titles mentioned in this bibliography have not always been indicated. For additional locations consult MUSE under the entry used in this bibliography.

Other Resources at McGill

The Islamic Studies Library has a fine collection on the Middle East, which includes serials and some monographic material with coverage of Near East prehistory. The Blackader Library has a significant collection of illustrative material on the artifacts of many native cultures as well as a basic collection on archaealogy in general. The Physical Sciences and Engineering Library includes such titles as the Geological Survey of Canada, which from time to time has incorprated material of archaeological interest and the annual ASTIS Bibliography which has a section on archaeology (see the Polar Regions guide). The scientific and geological material from the former Northern Studies collection, has also been incorporated into the collection in this library, among which some environmental surveys of potential archaealogical value can be found. Finally, the Government Documents in McLennan Library, which is a depository for Canadian and Quebec official documents, includes the publications of various government agencies which include site surveys etc. These documents are not listed on MUSE; to gain access to these sources, users must consult the Government Documents catalogue.

I. BIBLIOGRAPHIC GUIDES

Heizer, Robert Fleming. Archaeology, a Bibliographical Guide to the Basic Literature. New York, Garland, 1980.

Ref Z5131 H44

A good starting point, this work covers 4818 basic sources on the history of archaeology, the work of the archaeologist (large section), archaeology as a profession and sources of primary data. Emphasis on New World and English language publications but includes Old World, Africa and Asia. Both monographs and journal articles are included. No annotations. Author index only. Use Table of Contents for subject access.

Woodhead, Peter. Keyguide to Information Sources in Archaeology. New York, Mansell, 1985.

Ref CC120 W66 1985

This is the best guide to the literature. Covers all aspects of archaeology and includes reference aids and organizational sources worldwide. Part 1 is an overview of the literature (including online services and guides to conferences), cross-referenced to the 759 annotated sources in Part 2. Excellent index.

II. DIRECTORIES (MUSEUMS, SOCIETIES)

Art Museums of the World. Westport, Conn., Greenwood Press, 1987. 2v.

Blackader Ref N410 A78 1987

Offers scholarly articles on the history and collections of the world's major museums. Good bibliographies; good index including list of archaeological collections in various cities of the world.

Claus, Jean. A Professional Directory of European Scientific Laboratories Cooperating With Archaeology. Strasbourg, Council of Europe, 1980.

McL GN761 C55 1980

In French and English. Information for each laboratory includes address, personnel, source of support, summary of activities, principal areas and methods of research, significant publications and proportion of time devoted to archaeology. Excellent indexing for country, city, names of sites, research methods, materials, periods and civilizations, and research fields.

Museums of the World. Museen der Welt. 3d ed. New York, Bowker, 1981.

Blackader Ref AM1 M76 1981

Museums of all types in 163 countries are arranged alphabetically by country and by site within each country. Each entry is numbered to facilitate use of the indexes of names and subjects. There is also a section on national and international museum associations. Names are given in their original language; text is in English. The Directory of Museums (Blackader Ref folio AM1 D5x) is useful for the English version of names.

The Official Directory of Canadian Museums and Related Institutions. Ottawa, Canadian Museums Association, 1987.

Ref AM21 A1D57 1987

Includes museums, associations, selected organizations and government departments or agencies. Alphabetical index of personnel; institutional index by location, name or category.

The Official Museum Directory. United States. 1971- New York.

Latest in Ref AM10 A204

Lists over 6,500 museums and related institutions in the U.S. by location, name, subject and category. Archaeology museums and archaeological sites are indexed under "Science". Includes a products and services directory and an index of directors and department heads.

III. ENCYCLOPEDIAS AND TOPICAL DICTIONARIES

A. General

Dictionnaire de la Préhistoire. Paris, Presses Universitaires de France, 1988.

A comprehensive one volume encyclopedia providing short entries with brief bibliographies on prehistoric sites, tools and technical terminology. Roughly a quarter of the entries include diagrams. Concludes with line-drawn maps of all continents arranged by archaeological period, showing the location of all known sites.

The Concise Encyclopedia of Archaeology. 2nd ed. (rev. in new format). London, Hutchinson, 1970.

Ref CC70 C6 1970

The Facts on File Dictionary of Archaeology. New York, Facts on File, 1984.

Ref CC70 F32 1984

The above two sources are basic dictionaries of archaeology mainly for the undergraduate or educated layman but useful to archaeologists. The Concise Encyclopedia has longer more informative articles in some cases than Facts on File but the latter has a more balanced, more complete, world-wide coverage and is the more up to date. Both include sites, cultures, terms and techniques and short biographies, although The Concise Encyclopedia excludes North American archaeologists.

The Cambridge Encyclopedia of Archaeology. New York, Crown Publishers/Cambridge University Press, 1980.

Ref CC165 C3 1980

Serves as an introduction to the major themes of archaeology. Similar to Larousse (see below) but the chronological rather than geographical arrangement makes it easier to compare development in various regions at a particular time. Organized in three main parts: the development of modern archaeology; the development of man and frameworks: dating and distribution. Good introductory bibliographies at the end organized by chapter. Good index. Photographs, line drawings, some building and site plans.

Charles-Picard, Gilbert. Larousse Encyclopedia of Archaeology. London, Hamlyn, 1972.

Ref CC165 C4313 1972b

Arranged as a series of chapters forming a continuous text. The first section deals with the discipline, principles, techniques and development; the second with archaeological processes at various sites around the world, illustrating the applications of research techniques. Each chapter by a specialist in the field. Reading list and subject index at the end.

Dictionnaire archéologique des techniques. Paris, Editions de l'Accueil, 1963-64. 2v.

McL GN799 T6D5

The articles by specialists deal with technology and science in the world's ancient civilizations. Information is based on archaeological discoveries. Each volume has its own table of contents. Bibliography, maps, chronological chart, and subject index to both volumes are at the end of volume 2.

Ebert, Max. Reallexikon der Vorgeschichte, unter Mitwirkung zahlreicher Fachgelehrter. Berlin, de Gruyter, 1924-32. 15v.

Ref CB9 E22

Extensive and authoritative encyclopedia on prehistory with signed articles, prepared by specialists, including bibliographies. Many illustrations and maps. Volume 15 is a general index.

Encyclopedia of Human Evolution and Prehistory. New York, Garland, 1988.

Ref GN281 E53 1988

Archaeology is well-represented in this alphabetically arranged listing of over 1200 topical headings. Contributions by leading paleoanthropologists reflect the current trend of integrating palaeolithic archaeology and traditional physical anthropology. Longer entries each have a list of further readings. No index as such but good cross references. Some short biographical entries for dead or retired experts in the field.

B. America

Barnett, Franklin. Dictionary of Prehistoric Indian Artifacts of the American Southwest. Flagstaff, Ariz., Northland, 1973.

Ref E78 S7B34

Covers the period up to 1540 A.D., the arrival of the Spanish in the area. Excludes ceramic wares, matting, blankets, weaving, or woven basketry. Introductory section discusses how basic materials (bone, stone, shells, etc.) were worked. Articles include bibliographic references, definitions of the artifacts as well as details of their manufacture and usage. Bibliography and glossary at the end. For the beginning student.

Jelks, Edward B. Historical Dictionary of North American Archaeology. New York, Greenwood, 1988.

Ref E77.9 H57 1988

Over 1800 brief entries intended to provide "basic information on the major prehistoric cultures, archaeological sites and artifact types of North America." (Preface) The inclusions of sites and artifacts are selective, and are those deemed to be significant for illumination of the current major classifications and interpretations of North American prehistory. Each entry is signed by the contributor, and the basic sources of information are given. There is a combined topical and name index.

Muser, Curt. Facts and Artifacts of Ancient Middle America: A Glossary of Terms and Words Used in the Archaeology and Art History of Pre-Columbian Mexico and Central America. New York, Dutton, 1978.

McL F1217 M97 1978

For the student and the "educated traveller." Short definitions; maps defining cultural areas; site plans for major centers; chronological tables by cultural areas and five page annotated bibliography at the end.

C. China

Hansford, S. Howard. A Glossary of Chinese Art and Archaeology. 2nd rev. ed. London, China Society, 1961.

Blackader Ref N7340 H3 1961

Entries, arranged by subject headings according to the categories into which the Chinese group their art and antiquities, are in Chinese, with definitions in English. Some diagrams illustrate the objects and items discussed. Alphabetical index of transliterated Chinese entries.

IV. LANGUAGE DICTIONARIES

Canada. Translation Bureau. Research and Development Branch. Archéologie Canada. Ottawa, Minister of Supply and Services, 1978. (Bulletin de terminologie; no. 162)

Ref CC70 C3 1978

English and French equivalents and English definitions of archaeological terms. French index is on page 707.

German-English Dictionary, Art History-Archaeology. Berlin, E. Schmidt, 1982.

Blackader Ref N33 G47

Translations are without explanation unless there is no common equivalent in English.

Reau, Louis. Dictionnaire polyglotte des termes d'art et d'archéologie. Paris, Presses Universitaires de France, 1953.

Blackader Ref N33 R42

Provides equivalents (without definitions) of terms in many languages: English, French, German, Italian, Spanish, etc. Entries are in all different languages in one continuous alphabetical arrangement.

V. ATLASES

A. General

Hawkes, Jacquetta. Atlas of Ancient Archaeology. New York, McGraw-Hill, 1974.

Ref GN739 H38

Provides maps, detailed plans and short bibliographies for archaeological sites arranged by geographical area. Brief introduction for each area. Buddhist, Christian, Islamic, classical Greek and Roman monuments and sites are not covered. A chronological chart, a glossary, and a subject and place name index are at the end.

--------. The Atlas of Early Man. New York, St. Martin's Press, 1976.

McL CB311 H35 1976

The history of early man around the globe is here examined in eight time periods so that comparisons of concurrent developments can be made. Includes a very useful summary chart for each period by region as well as archaeological site maps, a good gazetteer and index. Well-illustrated.

Past Worlds: the Times Atlas of Archaeology. Hammond, 1988.

McL Folio G1046 E15P3 1988

Maps, site plans, photographs, illustrations and text survey the development of agricultural, urban and industrial societies. Includes a chronological table comparing geographical distribution of archaeological sites as well as a glossary of terms; a bibliography ararnged by subject and an index to place names, epochs, cultures and sites.

Whitehouse, David. Archaeological Atlas of the World. London, Thames and Hudson, 1975.

Ref GN739 W55

Covers 1600-1200 B.C. with emphasis on the Old World. Organized by large geographic areas with many maps and an index to sites at the end. Bibliographies of mainly English language works are at the end of each commentary. Many more sites can be identified than in Hawkes but, unlike Hawkes, there are no detailed plans of sites.

World Atlas of Archaeology. Boston, Mass., G.K. Hall, 1985.

Ref G1046 E15W6 1985

This is the English version of Le Grand Atlas de l'Archéologie (Blackader folio CC165 G67 1985). For the beginning student. Organized by large geographic areas with good world coverage even though 85% of the contributors are French archaeologists. Well-illustrated but few plans of sites. Bibliography, glossary and index at the end.

B. America

Coe, Michael, Dean Snow and Elizabeth Benson. Atlas of Ancient America. New York, Facts on File, 1986.

McL Folio E61 C66 1986

Chronologically arranged in readable, though scholarly style by three American archaeologists. Includes good illustrations, a short bibliography, detailed gazetteer and subject index.

Historical Atlas of Canada. Toronto, University of Toronto Press, 1987-

Ref Folio G1116 S1H56 1987 Lib has: v.1

The prehistoric period in Canada is very well covered in volume 1 ("From the Beginning to 1800") of this projected three volume set. Every physical aspect (flora, fauna, weapons, artifacts, climate, ecology, etc.) and some social ones (trade, religion, linguistic and tribal groupings, etc.) are portrayed with excellent scholarship and cartography. The last section, "Notes", lists the plates with the primary and secondary sources used for them. There is no index to the first volume.

VI. GUIDES, MANUALS, SURVEYS

A. General

Daniel, Glyn Edmund. A Hundred and Fifty Years of Archaeology. Cambridge, Mass., Harvard University Press, 1976.

McL GN720 D3 1976

Discusses important discoveries and developments in prehistoric archaeology during the years 1840-1973 with bibliographical references in the text and footnotes. Chronological table, bibliography and author/subject index are at the end; table of contents and glossary are at the front.

Dechelette, Joseph. Manuel d'Archéologie préhistorique, celtique et gallo-romaine. Paris, Picard, 1924-27. 4v.

McL DC63 D35

An introductory text for the study of prehistoric and celtic monuments and artifacts, including many illustrations, maps and charts. Bibliographic references are given in footnotes as well as at ends of some volumes. Each volume has a detailed table of contents and index of names, places and subjects.

Handbuch der Archäologie. Munchen, Beck, 1939- (Handbuch der Alkertumsurssen.schaft 6. Abt.)

McL PA25 H24 Abt 6 1939 Lib has: Bd 1/1-2,3;2/1,2; 3/1;4/1

Volumes 1 and 2 cover concepts, methods and history of archaeology as well as inscriptions and monuments. Volume 1 is in three parts and Volume 2 is in two parts with the last part for each volume containing the index to it. Volumes 3 and 4 (on sculpture, painting and drawing) were never completed and while some sections in all volumes must be supplemented by recent advances in scholarship, this work is still considered one of the most comprehensive and definitive works in the field. In 1969 a new revised series in 4 volumes with the overall title Handbuch der Archäologie im Rahmen des Handbuchs der Alkertumsurssen.schaft began to appear. In this series Barthel Hrouda's Vorderasien (McL DS56 H76) covering Mesopotamia, Babylonia, Iran and Anatolia is relevant to this guide.

Müller-Karpe, Hermann. Handbuch der Vorgeschichte. München, Beck, 1966-

McL GN739 M8 Lib has: V.1,2/1-3,3/1-3,4/1-3

An introduction to prehistoric archaeology planned to be complete in 5 volumes covering the Paleolithic to the Iron Age, which is planned as Volume 5. Volume 1 in ten chapters is a detailed survey with bibliographical references on most aspects of archaeology. Chapter ten lists important sites and finds and their literature by country and place. Indexes, list of abbreviations of bibliographical references, and plates and maps are at the end.

La préhistoire. 2è éd. rev. Paris, Presses Universitaires de France, 1968.

Ref GN738 P7 1968

This brief introduction to prehistoric archaeology begins with a section on sources, which lists archaeological sites and types of findings. The bibliography, p. 46-70, is in two sections: "Nos connaissances", which introduces the study of the archaeology of various periods and areas, and "Problèmes et directions de recherche". References are given in footnotes, illustrations are included, and a subject and place name index is at the end. A little out-dated but can be supplemented by Archéologie: cultures et civilisations du passé en France et dans le monde. (Blackader Ref CC165 A64 1980)

B. Africa

Phillipson, D. W. African Archaeology. Cambridge, Cambridge University Press, 1985.

McL GN861 P47 1985

Covers the entire continent from the earliest evidence of human life to the beginning of recorded history. Excellent bibliography (16 pages) and index.

Vandier, Jacques. Manuel d'archéologie egyptienne. Paris, Picard, 1952-

McL DT60 V3

v. 1: Les époques de formation.
v. 2: Les grandes époques.
v. 3: La statuaire.
v. 4 & 5: Bas-reliefs et peinture; scènes de la vie quotidienne.
Basic survey of the study of ancient Egyptian monuments and artifacts. Many illustrations and detailed references are provided. Volumes have detailed tables of contents and subject indexes.

C. America

Adams, Richard E. W. Prehistoric Mesoamerica. Toronto, Little, Brown, 1977.

McL F1219 A22

Gives a very good overview of the subject - "a synthesis of archaeological findings from Mexico and Guatemala and an interpretation of them." (preface) Includes a pronunciation guide, glossary, extensive bibliography and a good index.

Archaeology. Austin, University of Texas Press, 1981.

Ref F1434 H3 Suppl. 1

This first supplement to the authoritative Handbook of Middle American Indians effectively updates the volumes on archaeology (v. 2-3 and 10-11) in the original 16 volume set. The focus is on the most important excavation projects completed during the last 20 years and on topics of current interest - "the rise of sedentary life, the rise of complex society (civilization) and the rise of urbanism." (Preface)
PrefaceIncludes excellent plans of sites, a 46 page bibliography and a very good index.

Chronologies in New World Archaeology .New York, Academic Press, 1978.

Ref E61 C55

Eighteen regional experts collaborated to present a summary of the chronologies of the main archaeological areas of the New World in order to facilitate comparative analyses and studies of cultural change. Short bibliographies of books and articles for each area. Index of places, sites and cultural terms but no personal names. Initial section is on dating methods.

D. Central Asia

Gupta, Swarajya Prakash, 1931-. Archaeology of Soviet Central Asia and the Indian Borderlands. New Delhi, D.K. Publishers, 1979.

Provides a good overview of the archaeology of Central Asia, North India, Pakistan and Afghanistan. Chronologically arranged. Volume 1 is devoted to prehistory; Volume 2 to protohistory. Both volumes have good tables of contents and bibliographies but short indexes.

E. Orient

Chang, Kwang-chih. The Archaeology of Ancient China. 4th ed. New Haven, Yale University Press, 1986.

McL DS715 C38 1986

A good overview of Chinese archaeology. Chang has completely rewritten and updated his standard work. Chronologically arranged, it covers up to about 1000 B.C. Well-illustrated. Footnotes provide an extensive bibliography up to the end of 1985. Good index.

Cheng, Te-K'un. Archaeology in China. Cambridge, Heffer, 1959-

McL DS715 C4

v.1: Prehistoric China. Supplement: New light on prehistoric China. (1966)
v.2: Shang China. (1962)
v.3: Chou China. (1963)

An introduction to the study of Chinese archaeology. Includes illustrations, maps, charts, index and bibliography. Only 3 volumes of a projected 8 volume set have been produced so far. (McLennan does not have the supplement to v. 2, titled New Light on Shang China (1975).

F. Russia

Sulimirski, Tadeusz. Prehistoric Russia: an Outline. London, Humanities Press, 1970.

McL GN823 S9

Covers the Mesolithic through the early Iron Age for the European part of the USSR. Concerns the evolution of prehistoric peoples through changes due to migrations, conquest, invention and the like. Includes tables showing corresponding geological and archaeological periods and/or sites with appropriate fauna. Also tables of artifact styles chronologically arranged. Index of authors, sites and subjects. Short bibliography at the end and references with each chapter.

VII. BIBLIOGRAPHIES

A. Current

1. General

Art and Archaeology Technical Abstracts. v.1, 1960- New York.

Latest in Ref AM1 A7 Lib has: v.6(1966)-7(1969) on microfilm; v.8(1970/71)-

Covers articles and books dealing "specifically with the technical examination, investigation, analysis, restoration, preservation and technical documentation" of objects and monuments having historic or artistic significance. Classified arrangement with good subject index.

Archäologische Bibliographie. Beilage zum Jahrbuch des Deutschen Archäologischen Instituts. 1913- Berlin.

Ref Z5132 A67 Lib.has: 1913, 1929-35; 1939-43; 1964

A classified arrangement of books, articles, conferences and book reviews in all languages on all regions from prehistoric times up to the Byzantine Empire. Since 1976, reviewer and topical indexes have been added to the name (personal and place) index. Topical index also includes periodicals devoted to a given topic. Very slow to appear. Continues the bibliographies published in the Jahrbuch des Deutschen Archäologischen Instituts, v. 1-3, 1886-1888 (DE2 D5 McL) and in the Archäologischer Anzeiger; Beiblatt zum Jahrbuch des Archäologischen Instituts, 1889-1912, which is bound with the Jahrbuch.

Bibliographic Guide to Anthropology and Archaeology. 1988- Boston.

Ref Z5111 B47 Lib. has: 1988-

This bibliography is an annual update to the Tozzer Library Catalog (see section Vii.B.1.). It is designed as a comprehensive international bibliography covering monographs, conferences, maps, etc., with entries for authors, titles and L.C. subjects in one alphabetical series.

Bulletin signaletique. 526: art et archéologie; Proche Orient, Asie, Amerique. 1970- Paris.

Ref Z5051 B8526x Lib. has: v. 24, 1970-

Bulletin signaletique. 525: préhistoire. 1970- Paris.

Ref Z5051 B8525x Lib. has: v. 29, 1975-

Quarterly international bibliographies, published by the Centre Nationale de la Recherche Scientifique, cover journal articles, conferences and congresses, collections and ephemera. Books are not mentioned except in the case of important book reviews appearing in journals. Indexes of authors, subjects, etc. appear in each issue and are also cumulated annually.

"Periodical Literature", The Antiquaries Journal. v.1, 1921- London.

McL DA20 S612 Lib. has: v.1, 1921-

Lists contents of selected British and some non-British journals twice a year up to 1985 then once a year thereafter. From 1986 on, periodicals have been arranged geographically in very broad categories. Otherwise there is no author, title or subject approach. Covers prehistory, history and archaeology of Europe with emphasis on the British Isles. The Antiquaries Journal also includes a list of accessions to the library of the Society of Antiquaries in London.

2. America

Handbook of Latin American Studies. 1935- Gainesville.

Ref Z1605 H23 Lib has: v.1, 1935-

The major bibliography in the field covering periodical articles and monographic publications. After 1964 the volumes cover social sciences or humanities and are published in alternate years. Archaeology is in the social sciences volumes. Very complete author and subject indexes.

3. Egypt

Annual Egyptological Bibliography. Bibliographie egyptologique annuelle. 1947- Leiden.

Ref Z3656 A2A6 Lib. has: 1963-

From 1963-78 books and articles are listed in alphabetical order by author. References to review articles are included. Most entries are annotated in English, French, and, as of 1966, German. Abbreviations listed at the front. No indexes until 1979 when a classified arrangement is introduced with an author/title index at the end. At the same time necrology notices of egyptologists formerly appearing at the end now appear in Part IA of the classified section. Good section on archaeology.

4. Great Britain and Ireland

Archaeological Bibliography for Great Britain and Ireland. 1961-1980. London.

Ref Z2027 A8C59 Lib. has: 1961-1980

Absorbed by:

British Archaeological Abstracts. 1968- London.

Ref Z2027 A67B75x Lib has: v.1, 1968-

The second title listed has for most of its existence included abstracts for significant articles (about one half of the items listed) and brief annotations for monographs and reports, (classified by archaeological period with an index to authors and main topics included in each issue). The Archaeological Bibliography lists entries by author with an index arranged by country and then by period, subdivided by topic. Coverage is from palaeolithic to post-medieval period. Classified by archaeological period with an index to authors and main topics with each issue.

B. Retrospective

1. General

Deutsches Archäologisches Institut. Römische Abteilung. Bibliothek. Kataloge der Bibliothek des Deutschen Archaeologischen Instituts, Rom. Autoren nd Periodica Kataloge. Boston, G.K. Hall, 1969. 7v.

Ref folio Z5134 R7642

Catalogue of one of the most extensive archaeological collections in the world. Useful for verification purposes or for research in conjunction with the Archaeologische Bibliographie (Section VI.A.1.) for post 1969 publications. Similar in organization to the latter; that is, geographic with a broad subject index in Bd 1 and 3 of the classified catalogue. There is also an author index.

Tozzer Library. (Harvard University). Author and Subject Catalogs of the Tozzer Library. Harvard University, Boston, G.K. Hall, 1988.

Ref Z5119 T69 1988

Subject and author cards of the catalogue of this library are reproduced in microform providing an index to books, pamphlets, journals, festschriften, and proceedings of conferences. Formerly the Library of the Peabody Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology, the collection has worldwide coverage but is particulary strong in American archaeology and ethnography, especially for Mexico and Central America. Includes entries for monographs and serials catalogued through June 1986. From 1988 on, use Bibliographic Guide to Anthropology and Archaeology (see Sect. VII.A.1.) The Tozzer catalogue includes periodical articles through June 1983. After this date, consult Anthropological Literature (Ref Z5112 A57) also published by the Tozzer Library. In the Author/Title catalogue, headings in capital letters indicate biographical or critical material and follow the entries for authorship. When using the subject catalogue it is helpful to consult the two subject headings indexes (Ref Z5119 H36).

2. America

Bernal, Ignacio. Bibliografia de argueologia y etnografia: Mesoamerica y Norte de Mexico, 1514-1960. Mexico City, Instituto Nacional de Antropologia et Historia, 1962.

Ref Z1209 B45

Lists books and articles in all languages on the archaeology and ethnography of Central America and Mexico. General works are listed first, followed by works on individual areas subdivided by subject and, finally, lists of journals and other periodical publications, conferences and congresses, biographical sources and bibliographies of individuals, literary works, bibliographies, etc. References to book reviews are included, as well as two maps of the areas covered. Author index.

Dekin, Albert. Arctic Archaeology: a Bibliography and History. New York, Garland, 1978.

Ref E99 E7D36

Topical chapters on explorers and ethnographers, expeditions and pioneers, chronologists and prehistorians, archaeologists, etc., followed by a 112 page bibliography covering primarily English language literature from 1873 to 1976 with emphasis on the more recent. The bibliography is alphabetically arranged by author and then chronologically by work. It is cross-referenced from parenthetical footnotes in the topical sections but there is no subject index as such. Includes brief listings of libraries and museums with significant collections of arctic materials. Probably the most complete list of references on the topic.

Guyot, Mireille. Bibliographie americaniste: archéologie et préhistoire, anthropologie et ethnohistoire. Paris, Musée de l'homme, 1970.

Ref Z1209 G87 1970 & 1974

Not annotated. Material covers all the Americas including the Caribbean. Ethnic group, geographic and author index but no subject index.

Kendall, Aubyn. The Art and Archaeology of Pre-Columbian Middle America: an Annotated Bibliography of Works in English. Boston, G. K. Hall, 1977.

Ref Z1208 M4K45

Countries covered are Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, British Honduras, Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Panama. Books and articles are listed separately. One location is given for each source. There is an appendix of doctoral dissertations. The subject index is topical, geographical and cultural but is not well subdivided. Updates Bernal.

Magee, Susan Fortson. Mesoamerican Archaeology: a Guide to the Literature and Other Information Sources. Austin, Institute of Latin American Studies, University of Texas at Austin, 1981.

Ref Z1209.2 M4M33 1981

Written in the form of a bibliographic essay this work is a handy guide covering English and foreign language sources both current and retrospective. Not confined to prehistory.

Milisauskas, Sarunas. A Selected Bibliography of North American Archaeological Sites. New Haven, Conn., Human Relations Area Files, 1981. 2v.

Ref Z1208 N6M54

A very selective listing of site reports geographically arranged by state or province with author, culture period and site indexes. No annotations.

Storck, Peter. A Preliminary Bibliography of Early Man in Eastern North America 1839-1973. Toronto, Royal Ontario Museum, 1975.

Ref Z1208 A2S86x

Does not aim to be complete but contains the most important, frequently cited publications on the subject. Largest section is on Paleo-Indians and antecedents. Includes Canadian provinces east of Manitoba and the United States east of the Mississippi but only 5% of the references deal with Canada. Not annotated but has a geographic index, index of selected topics and index of selected sites and localities, all with too many numbers to be efficient.

Wauchope, Robert. Ten years of Middle American Archaeology: Annotated Bibliography and News Summary, 1948-1957. New Orleans, Tulane University, 1961. (Middle American Research Records, v.3, no. 1/5)

McL folio F1421 M54 v. 3, no. 1

A bibliography of books and articles on archaeology from the Rio Grande to the Panama Canal published 1948-1957. Begins with a summary of work accomplished in those years. The annotated bibliography which follows is arranged alphabetically by author. Key to abbreviations and selected subject index are at the end. Updated by the section on archaeology in the annual Handbook of Latin American Studies (see Sect. VII.A.2.)

3. China

Chen, Chin-Mo and Richard B. Stamps. An Index to Chinese Archaeological Works Published in the Peoples Republic of China, 1949-1965. East Lansing, Mich., Asian Studies Center, Michigan State Univ., 1972. (Occasional Paper, no. 3)

Ref Z3106 C46

Chinese Archaeological abstracts. Los Angeles, Institute of Archaeology, University of California, 1978.

Ref Z3108 A8C45

The first title lists works in Chinese on archaeology in China and gives English translations of the titles. The second has English abstracts of articles taken from 88 issues of three major Chinese archaeological journals covering the years 1963-66 and has a subject index. Both are arranged chronologically.

4. Europe

Gerlach, Gudrun und Rolf Hachman. Verzeichnis vor- und frühgeschichtlicher Bibliographien. Berlin, de Gruyter, 1971. (Deutsches Archäologisches Institut. Römisch-Germanische Kommission. 50. Bericht, 1969. Beiheft).

Ref Z62201 A1G47

Lists bibliographies on the prehistory and ancient history of Europe with emphasis on Germany and German language material. Coverage up to 1969. Arranged by geographical area, not by period. Maps are included and abbreviations are listed in the front. No index.

Schmider, Beatrice. Bibliographie analytique de prehistoire pour le paleolithique superieur européen: publications parues entre 1850 et 1968, conservées a la Bibliothèque du Musée de l'homme. Paris, Centre de documentation sciences humaines, 1975. 2v.

Ref Z2000 S34

Includes publications in many languages. Volume 1 contains indexes by author, geographic location, site, culture, subject, etc. Volume 2 contains the citations. The page numbers in the site index refer back to the geographic index not to the actual listing in Volume 2.

5. Great Britain

Bonser, Wilfred. A Prehistoric Bibliography. Oxford, Blackwell, 1976.

Ref Z2007 A67B65

Many errors, omissions, and corrections largely due to the early demise of the bibliographer but the only retrospective bibliography at the moment devoted exclusively to British prehistory and derived solely from British journals. Index of authors and subjects (rather poor). Not annotated. The annual British Archaeological Abstracts (Sect. VII.A.4.) is a more reliable but less convenient bibliography.

Mullins, Edward Lindsay Carson. A Guide to the Historical and Archaeological Publications of Societies in England and Wales, 1903-1933. London, Athlone, 1968.

Ref Z5055 G8M8

-------. Supplement. London, Longmans Green, 1930-48. 13v. (Bulletin of the Institute of Historical Research Supplement; no. 1-13)

Lists and indexes the titles and authors of books and articles found in the publications of more than 400 local and national societies of England and Wales. The first part is arranged by society, the second part is a detailed subject index, and the third part is an author index. Supplement covers to 1946.

6. Russia

Sovetskaia arkheologicheskaia literatura; bibliografia. 1918/40- Leningrad.

Ref Z2517 A8S6 Lib. has: 1958/62, 1976/78-

Comprehensive classified bibliography emphasizing Soviet works on archaeology in the USSR but including some foreign countries. Includes references to reviews of major publications. Detailed indexes are at the back. This work is in Russian, but there is a French index at the end.

7. South and Southwest Asia

Ellis, Richard S. A Bibliography of Mesopotamian Archaeological Sites. Wiesbaden, Harrassowitz, 1972.

Ref Z3039 A8E5

Computer-produced list of reports of excavations and some survey reports on all pre-Islamic sites in Mesopotamia, including Sassanian settlements. General works, handbooks and texts are not covered. Only works dealing with the physical remains are listed. Items are listed under names of sites, with cross references from ancient names to modern ones and vice versa. The introduction provides useful instructions. A map shows the modern administrative divisions of Iraq and there is a list of sites under the names of these divisions.

King, Denise E. A Comprehensive Bibliography of Pakistan Archaeology, Paleolithic to Historic Times. East Lansing, Asian Studies Center, Michigan State University, 1975.

Ref Z3198 A3K56

Also includes some of the major archaeological studies in adjacent countries which have a bearing on the interpretation and comparative analysis of Pakistan prehistory. Organized alphabetically by author and then dates. Cross index of basic subjects at the end has too many numbers to be useful.

Patterson, Maureen L. P. South Asian Civilizations: a Bibliographic Synthesis. Chicago, University of Chicago Press, 1981.

Ref Z3185 P37 1981

Indexes over 28,000 Western-language publications. Selective, unannotated but easy to use and includes a good deal of archaeological material. Note particularly chapter 2 (Prehistory and Protohistory of South Asia to 600 B.C.) and the 352 items in the subject index under "archaeology." Arrangement is chronological then geographic and topical. Author and subject indexes are at the end.

Roy, Ashim Kumar. Indus Valley Civilization: a Bibliographic Essay. New Delhi, Oxford & IBH, 1982.

Ref Z3207 I53R69 1982

Organized in three parts. Part 1 is an essay on the history of the Indus Valley and pre-Harappan cultures; includes list of Harappan sites and reports of the principal ones. Part 2 is a comprehensive bibliography arranged alphabetically by author (or title if no specific author) of important articles and books mainly in English up to 1979 on the proto-historic period of India. Part 3 is an addendum to the bibliography.
